M. E. RUSSELL IS SENTENCED

CHANGES PLEA TO GUILTY AND GETS FINE AND JAIL TERM.

KELLEY SUIT SETTLED

Plaintiff in Commission Case to Be Paid $120—Railroad Damage Suit Up Tomorrow.

Withdrawing a plea of not guilty and changing it to guilty, M. E. Russell was sentenced to pay a $200 fine and to serve three months in the county jail when he was arraigned before the circuit court this morning on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor. He was committed to the custody of the sheriff and will begin serving his sentence immediately.

Four days having elapsed since the conviction of Charles Cook on charge of burglary and larceny and no motion for new trial having been filed, he was arraigned this morning before Judge John Dawson and sentenced was pronounced. He will serve two years in the state penitentiary on charge of burglary and upon expiration of that sentence will serve another term of two years on the charge of larceny.

A jury was called to try the case of E. N. Kelley against W. E. Bloomfield, a suit on commission, but while the jury was being charged an agreement was reached by which Kelley is to be paid $120 and each party to the suit is to pay one-half of the costs.

These were the only transactions of importance in the court this morning, and adjournment was taken until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the suit of Shanks Brothers against the Chicago Great Western Railroad Co., will be tried. This is a suit for damages on appeal.

Other cases were disposed of as follows:

Farmers Bank of Parnell against Nellie J. Jones, suit on note, continued by agreement.

N. W. Templeton against E. T. Godsey, suit on account, continued by agreement.

G. T. O'Malley, Inc., against Willard G. Carpenter, account, continued by agreement.

Miller and Fogan against C. B. & Q. Railroad Co., damages, continued by agreement.

Miller and Fogan against C. G. W. Railroad Co., damages, continued by agreement.

H. S. Rowlette against Bert Charles, attachment, continued for want of service.

War Hero's Insurance to Go to Brothers

Robert N. Barber Is Made Administrator of Estate of Rolla A. Dicks, Who Died In France.

Another reminder that the United States not so long ago was engaged in a World War came to Maryville Saturday when Robert N. Barber of Burlington Junction was appointed administrator of the estate of Rolla A. Dicks, also of Burlington Junction, who died in France on October 14, 1918.

Rolla Dicks was one of the Nodaway County boys who entered the service of his country, was sent to training camp and then transported overseas for the assault against the German lines. He fought in some of the hardest battles in which the American troops were engaged, passing through them safely, only to become a victim of pneumonia in the base hospital at Here Court. He was a private in Company E, 313th Engineers. He volunteered for service in June, 1918, and at the time of his death was 29 years old.

In common with practically all his companions, Dicks took $10,000 of government war risk insurance. At his death installment payments were begun to his mother, Mrs. Sarah Dicks. Her death recently found about $7,300 of the $10,000 still due, and it now is to be paid in a lump sum. Three brothers of Rolla are the heirs.

Marriage License Is Issued.

A marriage license was granted this afternoon to Glenn O. Moon and Miss Blanche Margaret Overmire, both of Maryville.

About 115 Reservations for C. of C. Dinner

Will Be Held At First M. E. Church At 6:30 O'Clock Tonight—Colvin Brown To Speak.

About 115 reservations have been made for the Chamber of Commerce dinner at the First M. E. Church at 6:30 o'clock tonight. Colvin B. Brown, chief of the organization service bureau of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will be the principal speaker.

BUSINESS NOW AT ITS BEST

FOREIGN TRADE IMPROVING, HOOVER SAYS IN K. C.

PLANNING NAVIGATION

Five Hundred Delegates At Meeting—Real "Fireworks" Will Start This Afternoon.

Kansas City, Oct. 19.—Five hundred delegates from six states, with the speech of Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, as the main event tonight, are assembled here today for the Missouri River Navigation conference.

Definite plans to insure a transportation system for the Missouri will be discussed.

Routine business of organization, with addresses of welcome and responses, occupied the morning session of the meeting.

This afternoon, however, Samuel Thompson of Washington, secretary of the National Rivers and Harbors conference, will open the real fireworks of the meeting with a talk on "Waterways and Agriculture."

Secretary Hoover arrived this morning and was almost unnoticed as he walked through the lobby of the union station. It was not until he was met by reporters outside that travelers began to recognize him.

"Our foreign trade is improving satisfactory," Hoover said. "I believe the business situation now is the strongest it has been since the world began. The standard of living is the highest in the history of the country and that means the highest in the world. There are, of course, some weak spots. As for the Middle West, there is no unemployment out here and nobody can complain when everybody has a job."

ROAD QUESTION BEFORE COURT

CLEARMONT CITIZENS ASK HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT.

CURL HEARING LATER

County Court Asked To Pay Back Salary Of Former Prosecutor, Which He Claims Is Due Him.

A delegation of citizens of Clearmont and vicinity met with the County Court today to discuss improvement of the road leading north from a point near Burlington Junction and connects with the Iowa road system at Braddyville.

It has been regarded as almost certain that the Missouri Highway Commission would select this route as a branch connection with Highway No. 18, which passes through Maryville and Burlington Junction and on west to Tarkio. Recently, however, it has been reported that the highway might be routed by way of Tarkio, Red Oak and Shenandoah, instead of Elmo, Braddyville and Clarinda. The meeting here today was to urge improvement of the Nodaway County road so that it would be the best, as well as the shortest, route connecting with the Iowa state roads.

Those who discussed the situation were Judges E. T. Bailey and J. N. Billingsley of the County Court and John A. Burch, John F. Wolfe, J. W. Milbanks, M. I. Ross, Joe Rogers, Elmer Matlock, W. S. Gray, W. T. Humphrey, A. M. Hazelton, Mart Asbell and Howard Bancroft, all of Clearmont.

Later this afternoon the County Court discussed with Perry Evans and other residents of the Nodaway vicinity the straightening of the road which makes a double jog as it passes the Harmony Church. The church already has agreed to give the necessary ground on its side, and Mr. Evans has been asked to sell enough on his side that the sharp turns may be eliminated. It is estimated that about one-ninth of an acre of his land would be needed.

Charles Armstrong, the third judge of the County Court, went to the Holt-Nodaway County line this afternoon in connection with the preparation for building a joint bridge about three miles west and three miles south of Skidmore.

The hearing of the proceedings of O. L. Curl, former prosecuting attorney of Nodaway County, demanding that the County Court pay the added salary which he claims is due him, was postponed until later. The court has been ordered to appear today before the Circuit Court to show cause why the salary should not be paid, but an extension of time was granted to permit the County Court to confer again with the former prosecutor.

Publish Photographs of Prince as Flapper

London, Oct. 19.—Photographs of the Prince of Wales dressed as a flapper have aroused a storm of protest here. The photographs were taken when the Prince played a leading role in a play given on the Repulse from South America. It is understood that Buckingham palace is not pleased with the publication of the photographs, feeling that they are hardly in keeping with royal dignity.

CHURCH NEEDS CO-OPERATION

STARS CAN'T WIN, SAYS THE REV. R. E. MUSGRAVE.

SHOULD THING RIGHT

Only Way To Bring About Peace Is To Think Peace, Christian Church Minister Says.

A plea for co-operation in the church as well as the organized forces of Christianity was made by the Rev. R. E. Musgrave in the initial sermon of his pastorate here at the First Christian Church yesterday morning.

Speaking on the subject, "Co-operative Efficiency," the Christian Church minister said that team work was needed as much in the church as in business or play and added that without this team work, "it is impossible to make progress."

"The church must learn this lesson of co-operation," the minister said, "for the strength of the church is the member and the strength of the member is the church."

Regarding the "star players," the Reverend Mr. Musgrave pointed out that they can never win a game, whether it is on the gridiron, in business or in the church.

"This is why the football team practices and learns the signals," he continued, "because they are learning the great lesson of team work."

"The church cannot conquer sin with just a few individual stars in the game," Mr. Musgrave added, "but with all members working together for the common good, worldly influences cannot withstand the attacks and will flee before the onslaught."

Not only church members but church organizations and the various church denominations must co-operate in the battle for right, the Christian Church minister continued, and added that Christianity means to "live well with one another, according to Christ."

"If we fail in this we are going to fail as individuals," he continued.

"One of the first great tasks we must face is to Christianize thinking. We must think in terms of peace and in terms of law-abiding citizens. It is a wonderful thing to have a national mind as well as Christian thinking in all our churches and in the membership of our churches. The church must teach the world to think according to Jesus Christ and the only way for right thinking to come is just to think right."

The minister concluded his sermon by declaring that it is not how long a person lives but how well and that everyone should run the Christian race the best he can and with his hands reaching out.

Military Rule Will Cease in Belgrade

Sophia, Oct. 19.—Military rule in Belgrade will be abolished this week. This announcement today on Premier Zankoff's return from a long foreign tour was hailed joyfully at the capital. The military regime started when the Sveti Kral cathedral was bombed with heavy loss of life.

Robert O. Williams Dies at St. Joseph

Robert O. Williams, died at hospital No. 2 in St. Joseph, October 15, where he had been a patient for thirty-seven years. The body was brought to Maryville last evening and funeral services and burial took place this afternoon at Graham. Mr. Williams was 63 years old.

M. F. A. WILL RAISE $3,000

FUND IS TO BE USED TO COMPLETE CONTRACT DRIVE.

$3 FOR EACH SIGNER

Action of Delegates to County Meeting Here Saturday Will Be Submitted to Crossroad Clubs.

Decision to raise $3,000 for bringing to completion the Missouri Farmers' Association's victory contract drive was reached Saturday at the meeting of executive officers and delegates of the various Farm Clubs of the county, held in the courthouse here.

From this fund any person who shall secure a signed contract from a resident of Nodaway County, or a land owner of Nodaway County, is to be paid $3.

This action is to be submitted to the individual clubs, of which there are twenty-six in the county, and they are asked to meet this week to discuss raising of the fund. They will then appoint delegates to another county meeting to be held here next Saturday. One thousand contract signers already have been secured in this county, according to John Bosch of Pickering, secretary. The goal announced is the enlisting of at least 75 per cent of the farmers.

The resolutions adopted at last Saturday's meeting are as follows:

WHEREAS: the great State Convention, held at Sedalia August 24, 25, 26, 1925, in its report to its members, showed that the funds of the Association were so depleted that it would be necessary in the future for each county of this great State of Missouri to furnish its own funds for the purpose of putting over the Victory Contract Drive:

And WHEREAS, the State Association's representative, William J. Solter, called a meeting of the Nodaway County Board and the presidents and secretaries of the clubs of Nodaway County at Maryville on October 9, 1925, and informed them that it would be necessary for Nodaway County to raise the sum of $3,000.00 for the purpose of securing contracts in this county;

AND WHEREAS, those in the meeting above mentioned had no authority to pledge the above named amount, and it was their will to refer the matter back to the clubs at the crossroads, which clubs should send duly authorized delegates to a meeting to be held at Maryville, October 17;

AND WHEREAS, in the judgment of the delegates here assembled, the cost per contract in the past has been exhorbitant, and the plan heretofore used for securing contracts has been in a large measure, non-productive of results;

BE IT RESOLVED, that the delegates here assembled endorse the raising of the above mentioned amount for the above mentioned purpose, pledging ourselves to do all in our power to raise this amount, with the understanding that this fund in its entirety be placed in the hands of the Board of Directors of the Nodaway County M. F. A., and be kept in a separate fund;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Board of Directors shall pay out this fund only in the following manner and for the following purpose: On order of the Board, the secretary shall draw a warrant, which shall be signed by the president to any person who shall secure a signed contract from a resident of Nodaway county or a land owner in Nodaway County in the sum of three ($3.00) Dollars.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that copies of these resolutions be filed with our state Secretary, Howard A. Cowden, and with the county secretary, John Bosch, and copies be sent to the Missouri Farmer and to the local press in our organized territory, with request for publication.

Swinfords Capture Their Tenth Wolf

The Swinfords accompaniel by their dogs chased a wolf for two hours north of Bedison and finally captured him in Bob Allen's machine shed. The neighbors wanted them to rid that part of the county of the wolves and this made the tenth captured since spring. The men are claiming a bounty, which the law provides for, $10.00 per hide, but as yet none has been paid.

Not a Candidate, Al Smith Declares

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Definite declarations that he will retire from public office, and is not an active candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination were drawn from Gov. Al Smith today.

"I said Saturday night I intended to retire to private life in New York and I meant just that," the governor said after he had been questioned for half an hour as to just what he meant.

TAX CUT CHIEF PROBLEM NOW

START WORK OF DRAFTING PROPOSED LEGISLATION.

TO HAVE RIGHT-OF-WAY

Secretary Mellon Opposes Exemption Of Incomes Up to $5,000 Yearly—Congressional Fight Looms.

Washington, Oct. 19—The opening guns in the fight over 1925 tax reductions were fired today on capitol hill, six weeks in advance of the opening of Congress.

The powerful ways and means committee of the House under the chairmanship of Representative William R. Green, Republican of Pennsylvania, today began the task of framing a new revenue bill in the hopes of having a measure ready for the attention of Congress immediately upon its assembly in December.

By Congressional consent, tax reduction is to have the right of way over all other legislation in the session ahead.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Strong opposition to suggestions for exempting taxpayers with incomes of $5,000 or less from all federal income levies was voiced yesterday by Secretary Mellon on the eve of the meeting of the house ways and means committee to begin consideration of a tax reduction bill.

"The sole result of such a change," the treasury head declared, "would be an enormous loss of revenue to the government without a single compensating advantage. As a matter of policy, it is advisable to have every citizen with a stake in his country."

The statement, addressed to Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, in reply to such a suggestion by him, is taken as an answer to the proposal advanced recently by Representative Garner of Texas, ranking Democrat of the ways and means committee.

Democratic Members Favor Plan

He proposed to increase the exemption for single persons from $1,000 to $3,500 and for married persons from $2,500 to $5,000. Such a scheme, which has the indorsement of other Democratic members of the committee, is estimated to relieve 3 million taxpayers from all levies.

Whether the treasury will favor any increase in personal exemptions has not been made known. Its entire tax policy, however, will be presented to the committee at the opening of hearings.

Nevertheless, reductions in the normal tax rates applying to the smaller incomes or increases in exemptions, or perhaps both, are expected to result from the committee's efforts. Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey, one of the ranking Republican members of the committee, yesterday proposed both suggesting increasing the exemptions for single persons to $2,000 and for married persons to $3,500. He also proposed a cut in the normal rates on incomes of $4,000 and less from 2 to 1 per cent; on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000 from 4 to 2 per cent, and on incomes between $8,000 and $12,800 from 6 to 4 per cent.

To Attempt 24 Hour Flight Across U. S.

Lieut Leigh Wade Will Pilot Gigantic Plane, According to Pinas Announced by Sponsor.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—A non-stop twenty-four-hour flight from San Francisco to New York in a gigantic airplane with Lieut. Leigh Wade, around-the-world flyer, as one of its pilots, was announced as in prospect for late this month or early in November by Edward E. Evans of Detroit, in Chicago today.

Evans, banker, manufacturer and sportsman, said that he would be one of the plane's passengers. Another will be Linton Wells, who stowed away on one of the world flight planes in India.

Guy Clary and George Rob Clary of Clearmont spent Saturday in Maryville.

PEACE PACTS BRING RESULT

EVACUATION OF COLOGNE ALREADY UNDERWAY.

LEAGUE HAS KEY NOW

European Nations Look Upon Coolidge's Proposal With Coolness And Believe Geneva Should Be Stage.

Paris, Oct. 19.—Negotiations for the evacuation of Cologne as a result of the Locarno securities are already underway, it was announced by the foreign office today.

Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, and M. Briand, French minister, met this afternoon to discuss plans for the evacuation.

While French opposition to a disarmament conference called by President Coolidge is being openly expressed in the newspapers, Paul Bencour, French delegates to the League of Nations, today suggested that the United States should co-operate with the efforts of the League of Nations for disarmament.

Washington, Oct. 19.—President Coolidge's suggestion that the successful negotiations of the Locarno Securities pact paves the way for a second international conference and his announced willingness to initiate such a conference has been received with distinct coolness abroad, according to confidential reports reaching Washington from American diplomatic sources.

Europe's reaction to the President's idea is such as to strengthen the suspicion already entertained here that at the negotiations in Locarno, there was a quiet agreement among the powers to have the League of Nations and not the United States stage any further disarmament shows.

On Mr. Coolidge's behalf, it was said today he has no desire to force an arms conference upon Europe if Europe does not want one. Neither, it was said, will the United be put in the undignified position of "bidding against the League of Nations for the production."

Father and Son Are Killed in Explosion

Both Are Inspecting Mine Which Opens Today After Year's Idleness—Others Escape Unhurt.

Linton, Ind., Oct. 19.—Two men, father and son, were killed instantly in a gas explosion in the Litty Betty mine near here shortly before noon today. Joseph Stephenson, 57, and Will Stephenson, 30, were inspecting the mine which resumed operations today after a year's idleness, and were caught in the explosion. Twenty other miners escaped unhurt.

Says No S. O. S. Calls Sent From Steamship

Witness Declares Naval Authorities Not Notified Of Submarine Disaster Until 4 Hours Afterward.

Boston, Oct. 19.—Testimony that no S. O. S., or disaster signals, were sent out by the City of Rome following the collision with the submarine S-51, and that the naval authorities were not notified for four hours after the crash was given today before the naval board of inquiry, investigating the disaster at the Charleston naval yard by Harold A. Kelley, radio operator on the City of Rome.

Kelley told the court of inquiry that Captain Diehl of the City of Rome brought him a message at 12:10 o'clock a. m., nearly two hours after the crash, to send the Savannah steamship line, owners of the vessel.

New Hose Received by Fire Department

Three hundred feet of new hose have been received by the Maryville fire department. An inspection of all equipment will be made within the next day or two and the new hose substituted for any that is found defective. The fire-fighting apparatus will be in first class shape for winter.

The Weather

Generally fair tonight and Tuesday, continued cold tonight, lowest temperature about 28, rising temperature Tuesday.

C. A. Blair of Carthage Writes About Some of His Experiences Here

Charles A. Blair of Carthage, Mo., a former resident of Maryville, has written the following letter to Captain Charles Hyslop:

My Dear Oldtime Friend:

Your letter of to-day is a pleasant surprise. I was in Maryville but a few hours—about two—and found many changes since I left there in 1881. I found Jim Robinson, Ed Townsend and tried to find my boyhood chum, Jim Colby, who was away. I saw Moon Stinson, with whom I played as a boy, and I saw Harvey Crane, who used to garner my nickles for valentines and toys.

The years have gone very swiftly. My Father died at 94, this year; my mother many years ago. My brothers are alive, and my sister. I have lived here since 1889; from 81 to '89 I lived in St. Joe.

I have three sons, two married, one soon to be; the eldest is Manager of two newspapers in Joplin, and owns a considerable interest therein. The second one is in the Flouring Mill business, representing his and my interest, in Topeka; the youngest boy is now taking hold of the advertising end of the Missouri Pacific Railway. They are all graduates of Universities, and I have much pride in them. I am mostly engaged in taking my ease, just now. If arrested for vagrancy, I fear I could not make a good defense, so far as activity is concerned. We spent this summer in Canada and Minnesota, and it was on my way back that my wife and I drove through Maryville.

The old town looked good, but I felt like Rip Van Winkle, and could hardly orient myself and find the way. I recognized the old Gaunt nursery home, but the surroundings were strange.

Jim Robinson steered me into the newspaper office, and a man named Todd was there. I suspected he was a son of Jim Todd. It was in the old building where I served an apprenticeship as a printers devil on the old Republican, with Barney Condon and Prof. Dunn. Up stairs was the old Republican office, and the old Union Hall where Mr. Howater used to use me as usher so that I got to see the traveling tragedians and commedians and commediennes strut their stuff in Uncle Toms Cabin and other sensations.

Well, I should like to have seen you. Should you come this way, I trust you will call upon me. I do not often get into North Missouri, our line of travel being more eastward and westward. Someone told me that Prof. Dunn is yet living. I saw Will Charles, who was a printer on the old paper, in Colorado some years ago. He had a prosperous business, a rather extensive soda fountain being a part. I waited until he was at that end of his store, and I demanded a Byron Condon Sunday; he looked at me awhile and I then said A Prof. Dunn chocolate would do; he waited until I ask for a Jim Davis something—and he gave up. He didn't know me.

Sometimes I run across some of the old timers. Ed Dennis lives here; Charley Albaugh is alive and I see him occasionally. Both his sisters have gone over, and his father and mother.

I am now 61, and sometimes think I better fire up again and get busy. But I'm getting lazy, and have a good time watching the boys carry on.

I remember your military uniform as the one grandest picture of my youth.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

Chas. A. Blair.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

Unique Display by College Fraternity

A unique idea in display is that by the Pi Omega Pi Commercial Fraternity at the college. Shorthand characters in white ink on black paper form the outline features of faces. The shorthand "features" make pertinent slogans such as: "Education pays—invest now," "The man with muscle is best at 22, 23, and 24," "The man with trained mind is best at 50, 60 and 70," "Fear is the result of ignorance," "Is your chin up," "Ideas unexpressed die quickly."

A poster "How do You Spend Your Leisure Time" compels attention to the way in which leisure time may be used to develop the future.

A typewriter with a model business letter partly typed is an added feature.

The active members of the Fraternity who sponsored the exhibit are: Miss Louise Freeman, Gordon Roach, Miss Grace Dietz, Miss Elsie Brown, Paul Robey, George Newman and Miss Cleo Holt.

The exhibit is in the exhibit case on second floor.

Another exhibit on the same floor is that by the arts department. A number of posters are displayed by the fine arts class, Commercial Art 41. Machine drawings and architectual plans of a high class are exhibited. Accompanying a set of books on industrial art subjects is a description of the evolution of the plane. Other tool for woodworking are displayed.

Damage Suit Was Settled Saturday

Convent at Clyde Offer of American Railway Express Company for Monstrance.

(St. Joseph News-Press).

The suit of the Benedictine Convent of Perpetual Adoration at Clyde, Mo., against the American Railway Express Company for $4,000 damages on a jeweled monstrance has been settled out of court. Late yesterday the case was dismissed by Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis.

The suit, which was first filed in the circuit court, later was transferred to federal court. The convent, in its petition, alleged that the monstrance, valued at $8,000, had been damaged and broken through "carelessness and negligence" on the part of the express company, and that its value had been lessened $4,000.

The monstrance, which was purchased at Bremen, Germany, reached New York, where it was accepted by the express company, in good condition, it was alleged. It was on the trip from New York to Clyde, Mo., that it is alleged to have been broken.

Attorneys in the case said today that the convent had accepted an offer made by the express company rather than fight the matter out in court.

The monstrance was sent from Germany in January, 1922, and the suit has been continued several times. It was impossible to make repairs on the monstrance in this country, its value being reduced to the worth of the material.

Capital Worried by Fear of Blue Laws

Washington in Past Has Generally Been Lax and Somewhat "Wide Open"—is Due for Reforms

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer

Washington is worried by the threat of an epidemic of blue law enactments when Congress, its city council, meets.

Left to its own devices, the capital tends strongly toward worldliness, not to say wide openness. It was a pretty swift town in the old days. It is yet, insofar as up-to-date circumstances permit.

Self-governing, it's safe to say, would be very sparing of restrictions on its pastimes, innocent and otherwise. It's governed, however, exclusively from outside itself.

Now, certain of the outsiders have noticed that many Washingtonians are lax, among other things, in the matter of Sunday observance. Said outsiders believe much unnecessary business is transacted in the capital on the Sabbath.

They disapprove of Sunday theatricals and movies, to which the population is much addicted. They frown on Sunday golf and other sports, which are extremely popular in the city's neighborhood.

They were especially scandalized by the big turnout for the recent world series Sunday game of baseball.

Congress is going to be urged to stop all this.

Several bills are scheduled to be introduced on the subject in December. If any one of them should pass, judging from advance descriptions, an early-day New Englander, dropping into the capital of a Sunday, would have to walk a chalk line to keep out of jail.

Numerous other things, besides Sunday observance, are on the list for attention, too.

Washingtonians are already holding mass meetings of protest. It's doubtful if they'll do any good. Nobody cares what the Washingtonians want. They ought to be shining examples to the country. If they won't do it voluntarily the only way to accomplish it is forcibly, by law.

THE DOXOLOGY.

NEWS OF MISSOURI CITIES AND TOWNS.

Fredericktown—The water supply for the new waterworks plant here has been struck at a 190 foot level. Four attempts were made before the sand was found.

Mexico—This city will vote early in November at a special election to authorize $300,000 in bonds for a new high school building. This will be assured Monday with the presentation of petitions carrying hundreds of names to the Board of Education.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 19.—Following the announcement that work would be started late this fall on the first unit of the Missouri University Memorial stadium, Dr. J. C. Jones, director of the Memorial campaign, has organized his campaign forces here to collect $50,000 in cash in pledges made by students now attending the university.

This amount would be added to the $200,000 obtained through the sale of bonds to have the necessary amount so that the contracts might be awarded.

Miss Maizie Mills, president of the Women's Self-Government Association, volunteered to act as chairman of the campaign on the campus. She has perfected her organization and appointed fourteen soliciting teams to collect the pledged money.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 19.—Carl Gentry, instructor in the School of Fine Arts of Missouri University has been honored by the Fontainebleau School of Fine Arts in France where he studied this summer. Mr. Gentry was one of five students awarded diplomas for excellence in work.

Sikeston—The "Blue law" is in effect here despite the veto of Mayor Felker. Six of eight aldermen voted in favor of the ordinance and over ruled the veto. The law prohibits Sunday moving pictures.

Caruthersville—Paul Hummel, local druggist, went to a druggists' meeting at Memphis. There was a contest on, to guess the number of beans in a jar. Hummel tried to dodge out of the contest because he never had any luck, but finally entered at his wife's pleading. When he returned here he found a check for $250, first prize in the contest.

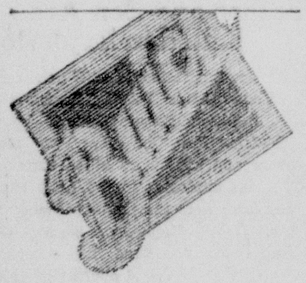
Moberly—J. B. Seldon paid ten dollars to show his allegiance to the Pittsburgh Pirates ball club. A Washington fan called the National Leaguers a bunch of bush leaguers and Seldon immediately came to the defense. He swung both his right and left. His only defense when taken to police court was: "Well, Judge, wouldn't you be for your home town?"

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 19.—The annual round-up of Boy Scouts in the Central Missouri district was on here today. It was estimated that about six hundred of the scouts were in attendance.

The Lions club of this city was host to the Scouts at an open air luncheon. This afternoon the Scouts were to attend the Missouri-Rolla football game. Boys representing the following towns were here:

Vandalia, Macon, Moberly, Chillicothe, Sedalia, Boonville, Jefferson City, Mexico, Fulton, Fayette, Marshall, California, Paris, Centralia, Keytesville and Versailles.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM



Built for Rough Roads
Better BUICK Closed Cars

Extra sturdiness is an outstanding feature of Buick motor cars. Buick closed cars demonstrate this most strikingly in cross-country travel.

Town or country, good roads or bad, it's all the same to a Buick. You can go anywhere any car can go, and do it much easier because of the famous, 75 horsepower, Buick Valve-in-Head engine.

You can travel long distances in more comfort because of the deep, wide, luxurious seats, the extra head and leg room, and full cantilever rear springs. And Buick's ball bearing, worm and nut steering mechanism removes all driving strain. This is the most efficient and most expensive steering gear so far perfected.

Better Buick closed models, are now on display. Your attention is particularly directed to the 4-door and 2-door Fisher Body Sedans at "Coach" prices.

Battered Pens at Postoffice Soon Will Be Replaced

The scratchy, battered postoffice pen is about to disappear.

Postmaster J. F. Hull has received notice from Harry S. New, Postmaster-General, that all postoffices must provide good usable pens and clear ink on writing desks. Mr. New also ordered that only stub pens be used.

In first and second class postoffices, New suggests "that some employe be specifically designated to attend to the matter in order to secure good writing equipment.

"At third and fourth class offices," the order continues, "it is requested that the postmasters themselves give this matter their personal attention."

SMALLER AND FEWER FARMS

SOUTH SUFFERS LOSS

General Trend In Agriculture Is Toward More Intensive Operation—Negro Workers Are Moving.

Washington, Oct. 19.—(United Press)—Agricultural America in the past five years has undergone profound changes, resulting in a loss in the total number of farms under cultivation, according to the 1925 farm census, results of which were announced by the census bureau.

The total number of farms in the United States at the present time was placed at 6,372,608, compared with 6,448,343 in 1920, a decrease of 75,735 farms, or 1.2 per cent of the total.

The bare figures, however, do not tell the story of farm abandonments and the sub-division of great ranches into smaller units which has disguised the extent of the decline.

Adandonments were greater in the south than elsewhere. The west compensated somewhat for this loss by turning in an increase but this increase was at the expense of the great ranges and ranches, which were cut up into smaller units without increase of acreage.

The general trend, it was shown, has been toward more intensive operation with the small truck and poultry farms replacing the larger acreage where diversified farming had been the practice.

The ravages of the boll weevil in the cotton states and the migration of negro farm workers were responsible it was stated, for the decline in the number of farms in the south.

In Georgia, the number of farms decreased 20 per cent, in South Carolina 10 per cent, Alabama more than 7 per cent and in Mississippi and Kentucky 5½ and 4 1-2 per cent respectively.

The number of ranches along the Pacific slopes increased 31,413 in the five year period, it was shown. In California, the increase was 15.9 per cent, in Oregon 11.4 per cent and in Washington 10.5 per cent.

An increase of 23.7 per cent was indicated in the number of farms in Nevada while Montana showed a decrease of 18.4 per cent since 1920. Idaho, Wyoming and Colorado also showed decreases, while New Mexico, Arizona, and Utah, increased in number.

What Jerry Says

A little girl named Mary Ann,
A little Ford that Mary ran,
A little train came down the track,
A little stall, it wouldn't back;
A little field where Mary lit,
A little scar where she was hit,
A little inquest by Dr. Crain,
A little verdict, "killed by a train,"
A little funeral they said,
A little tear by all was shed;
A little sermonette was read,
A little song, a prayer was said,
A little grave-yard near the town,
A little stone, a little mound,
A little epitaph which ran,
"Here lies our little Mary Ann."

Moral

A little sense, a little care,
And Mary Ann would not be there.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath (© W. J. Watt and Co.)

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

JOHN W. BROOKE, hardware magnate and widower, has arranged with the Economy and Efficiency Corporation, Limited, to have his household managed by their representative for two months while he is out of the city. He leaves town without informing his grown children, Constance, William and Alice, of the new arrangement.

H. HEDGE, efficiency engineer, assigned to the work, announces the news to the shocked household. He shows documentary evidence and joins the family at dinner. Hedge takes time from his food to tell the butler how to walk efficiently and then enters into a discourse with the three "children."

He calls attention to his card which states simply "H. Hedge, E. E." After he has explained the economic points of the card Constance decides on a bit of heckling.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"And the 'H' instead of your first

"What is that for?

name—is that also an economy?" asked Constance.

"Assuredly."

"But there must be other 'H. Hedges' in the world, even in the city. It would seem very easy to get you mixed up."

"Theoretically, yes. Practically, no. Take your own case. Your name, I believe, is Constance T. Brooke. I care not what the middle name may be; it is superfluous and wasteful in any event. We will throw out the 'T.' to begin with. We will now assume that your card is printed 'C Brooke.'"

"Engraved," amended Constance.

"Printed," said Mr. Hedges. "Engraving costs from three to four times as much. However, you are 'C. Brooke.' Now, you suggest that that is not sufficient identification. I insist that, for your purposes, it is. In the first place, nearly all persons to whom you distribute this card, owing to a silly social custom, are quite aware of your identity. In the second place, there is no other 'Brooke' residing at this number on Fifth Avenue. In the third place, I venture to say that not in all the circle of your acquaintance is there another C. Brooke with whom you could possibly be confused. There may be other C. Brookes in the world. Yet I should estimate, off-hand, that your chances of being confused with one are about one in three or four million. So you see that practice and theory are not always in accord. Take my advice and leave the 'e' off the Brooke. It is cumbersome, unnecessary, and silent. If you use it you ought to pronounce it. Otherwise it is alphabetic extravagance."

Mr. Hedge smiled gently and evidently awaited a refutation of his statement. There was none from Constance; she was annoyed and angry.

"That being the case," she said, controlling her voice, "why not leave the final 'e' off 'Hedge'?"

The substitute father studied her with quick interest.

"You are an apt pupil," he said. "The suggestion is excellent. When it is necessary for me to obtain new cards I shall do so. Thank you."

Somehow Constance did not feel that she had achieved an effective retort. She did not want to be an apt pupil; she did not in the least intend to be of any assistance in promoting economy and efficiency.

Mr. Hedge sought to pursue his advantage.

"You children must understand," he said in a friendly tone, "that while my profession proceeds along certain well-defined lines, it is not necessarily a complete science. I shall always be glad to receive suggestions, provided that they conform to the general theory and principles of scientific management. I want you to feel free to come to me at any time on such matters.

"And in all matters, so far as that is concerned, I expect, of course, that you children will make me your confidant and adviser."

"You children!" The expression caused the three Brookes to writhe in their chairs. Why, this interloper was scarcely older than Billy Brooke! Unknown to Billy, Hedge was watching the proceeding narrowly.

"Will you kindly explain to me," he said suddenly, "why you wave a match eight times in order to extinguish it?"

Billy gaped at him.

"You waved it eight times—so," declared Hedge, illustrating. "Waste energy. An unnecessary physical effort that might be employed. I extinguish a match—so."

He lighted one, waited until the flame had firmly caught the wood, then ehld it a few inches from his lips and puffed gently.

"Waste of wind!" exclaimed Billy triumphantly.

"Not at all. It was necessary for me to expel my breath. I merely took advantage of an inevitable by-product."

The Hedge person was thus far impervious. He had an annoying faculty of turning a thrust to his own advantage.

There was an awful silence, during which Constance and Billy eyed their substitute father furtively.

"We will rise, if you please," he said.

The Brookes rose mechanically, as though it were quite useless to offer resistance. Besides, dinner was over.

"I should like to examine the other apartments on this floor," announced Hedge.

Constance, naturally assuming the lead, headed the procession out of the dining room. She touched a button at the entrance to an apartment across the hall from the library and flooded it with light. The efficiency man examined its rich furniture critically.

From a pocket he had produced a small note-book and pencil in which he proceeded to make a few brief entries.

"What do you call this room?" he asked.

"Nothing particular," answered Constance; "it is used to receive guests, occasionally for dances or other entertainments."

"Parlor," observed Hedge, making a note.

"It is not a parlor," retorted Constance coldly. "Parlors are vulgar."

Nevertheless, the maker of notes made no erasure. Instead he stepped across the room and paused on the threshold of a smaller apartment.

"A music-room," explained Constance. "Beyond is a conservatory."

Mr. Hedge made additional notes.

"I wish to see the library again," he said.

The procession retraced its steps, Mr. Hedge pausing at the hallway to extinguish the lights.

"It is customary to leave them burning," said Constance.

"Evidently." But he did not turn them on again.

He took note of the great table in the center and of two writing-desks that stood near a window.

He observed with a slight frown an innumerable number of electric bulbs, all glowing softly through their transparent glass. Several of them he turned out as he passed.

A Circassian-walnut phonograph arrested his attention.

"It plays tunes," explained Alice sweetly.

"You have music here?" asked Mr. Hedge.

"When we desire it," replied Constance.

"And in the music-room also?"

"Certainly. I also have a piano upstairs."

He made another note.

"I suppose that's too much music," growled Billy, with a glance at his sisters.

"Exactly," said Mr. Hedge evenly.

He continued his exploration and presently arrived at a small button let into the wall.

"What is that for?" he inquired.

"It calls the butler."

The efficiency man pressed it, then took out his watch and kept his eye on the dial. He looked up as Horace entered the library and stood at attention.

"Thirty-two seconds," he observed. "Where did you come from, Horace?"

"I was in the dining-room, sir."

"A distance of some twenty or twenty-five yards. You occupied thirty-two seconds in walking that distance. Now, while I do not require you to run, hereafter I shall expect you to cut your time in half. That will allow you sixteen seconds—ample. Please call the other servants and have them all report to me here at once."

It was a wide-eyed company that faced the efficiency man, with Horace standing a little in advance and at one side, like a non-commissioned officer. They stared at the stranger with frank wonder written on their faces.

"All here?" asked Hedge with faint sarcasm.

There were eight in line.

"My own maid is away for the evening," said Constance.

"Very well; who are the others, if you please?"

"Horace, the butler, you know," began Constance, after a rebellious instant of hesitation. "Next to him is Mary, the cook; next to her, Elvira, the second cook; the next is Frank, the chauffeur; next are Minnie and Ruth, housemaids; next to Ruth is Fanny, the laundress. The one on the end is Giovanni, the furnace man."

Giovanni glowered as his name went down in the little book.

"This completes the list, then?" asked Mr. Hedge.

"I forgot; there is another," said Constance, counting. "George, the footman."

"He had an evening off, miss," explained Horace quickly.

"We will do without him for the present," said the efficiency man as he reached into his pocket and drew forth a document that was already ominously familiar to the three Brookes. "You will now give me your close attention."

NEXT CHAPTER: A truce at breakfast.

CLEARMONT.

Our oldest townswomen, Grandma Hurdle and Grandma Walker have been rather feeble of late; they both are near the century mark, yet are alert and keeping pace with the younger ones in knowledge of world doings. Live on good women.

Rev. L. F. Harman and family are moving to Eagleville, Harrison Co. this week. Mr. Harman filled his first appointment last Sunday and met a large appreciative congregation. He was also glad to find a splendidly equipped new school building, new church and comfortable parsonage. Eagleville is a live town of 800 inhabitants and is located on the Jefferson Highway. Rev. Doreas takes Mr. Harman's place at Clearmont.

A lovely reception was given by the Eastern Star Chapter at the Masonic Hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harman last Tuesday night. All enjoyed an hour or so in lively games, then a splendid serving of sandwiches, doughnuts, pie, pickles and coffee, to which all did justice. Following the luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Harman expressed their appreciation of the respect shown them. Mr. Manning Rose then gave a short address in his pleasing way, emphasizing the appreciation of the Clearmont people of Mr. and Mrs. Harman and family. We believe the entire evening was one to be very kindly remembered by all present.

Social evenings were given at the homes of Messers Waltocks, Wallaces, Beams and the school house in honor of Eugene, Pauline, Eva and Elaine Harman; and they wish to express their appreciation of these nice times and also their regrets in having to leave their fond friends they have enjoyed so much. They have also appreciated their teachers and school advantages of Clearmont.

The Parent-Teachers association meetings have been well attended this fall from one hundred fifty to two hundred at each meeting and splendid programs have been rendered; also nice luncheons have been served. Next meeting is at the usual time, first Friday in each month. The election of a new President is in order as Mrs. Harman is moving away.

THIS WEEK IN MISSOURI HISTORY

Compiled by
Missouri Historical Society.
Floyd Shoemaker, Secretary.

The year 1864 was the last with five seasons. According to Missouri wits the war had added a season, until the order stood "spring, summer, fall, Price's raid, and winter." But '64 was the last and October 23rd marked the close of the "new" season. It also marked the crisis of disaster to the Confederate cause in Missouri. On that day ended the three-day battle of Westport and the five-week raid of General Sterling Price.

From the moment General Sterling Price in command of the "trans-Mississippi Army" of 10,000 men entered the state in the southeast he encountered misfortunes. Forestalled in their plan to attack St. Louis, forced to withdraw from Jefferson City, and harassed all the way in the march from Boonville to Jackson County, his forces fought the first of a series of battles at the Little Blue river, a stream east of the town of Independence, on October 21, 1864.

There was a sharp skirmish at the Little Blue, and General Price forced the federal troops of General Curtis to abandon their position and fall back to their entrenchments along the Big Blue river. These federal entrenchments faced eastward toward Independence with a closely guarded front of between ten and fifteen miles. Price's army covered the country from near the Big Blue eastward nearly to the Little Blue with General Alfred S. Pleasanton and his federal troopers in the rear. Such was the situation on the night of October 21.

On the morning of the 22nd the fighting began along the Big Blue. The federals were numerically superior to Price's army, their entrenchments were on a steep-banked stream fordable only in a few places, and the channel of the stream had been choked with felled trees, forming a barrier through which a way could be forced only by much delay and the use of axes. Yet Price's cavalrymen, by the persistent and tenacious nature of their assault, succeeded in forcing a crossing in the very face of the resistance to their advance and by night occupied the federal entrenchments along the Big Blue. The Federals fell back to their defense along Brush creek and Wornall road in front of Kansas City. While Price was making this attack, General John S. Marmaduke had been forced into an encounter with Pleasanton's troops in the town of Independence. The Confederates resisted the attack of the Federal and kept Pleasanton's forces back until they joined Price in the entrenchments along the Big Blue.

The next day, October 23, the sun shone on an ideal Sabbath, but long before the hour for the chimes proclaiming the day, at sunrise, the Battle of Westport had begun.

Twenty-nine thousand men took part in this conflict. The casualties reached 1,000. The states of Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Iowa, Wisconsin, Colorado, Texas, and Illinois all had troops in the battle. Major-General Samuel R. Curtis moved forward through Westport with an army of 15,000 against General Joseph O. Shelby's troopers; General Pleasanton came up from the rear with 5,000 men against General John S. Marmaduke's guard at the river. The Confederate troops numbered 9,000 in all.

General Shelby and his men had a strong position on the top of a hill in front of Westport and had been able to stop every advance of Curtis' forces up this hill. Then occurred an interesting event. A very old and feeble man begged a moment's talk with Curtis. He explained to General Curtis that he knew where there was a gap in the rocky ridge that had proved so impregnable and would point it out. Curtis bade him lead the way and the old man conducted the troops to a more gentle acclivity, thus allowing them to mount the hill and destroy the strength of Shelby's position. General Curtis begged the old patriot to mount a horse and accompany him and his staff throughout the day as a mark of gratitude for the really very great service he had done them, but the old veteran refused.

The fighting in front of Westport was of a most desperate character. A number of times the forces met in hand to hand encounters. The Confederate sharp-shooters climbed the trees and picked out the Federals, officer and private alike. Captain Curtis Johnson of the Kansas volunteer cavalry and Colonel James H. McGhee met in a duel in the very midst of the melee of shouting men, cracking pistols, and plunging horses. McGhee fired first, severely wounding Johnson through the heart, dropping him from his horse dead. The fall of their leader disheartened McGhee's remaining men and they broke and fled.

At almost the same hour that McGhee fell, General Marmaduke made his last stand along the Big Blue river in the endeavor to hold back General Pleasanton's men. Bullets sown like pebbles in the fields and gardens marked the spot where the Federals charged up the hill in the face of a withering fire from the men in gray. A log cabin that stood until 1895 was estimated to bear the marks of 5,000 bullets received in this engagement. The Federal force that hurled itself up the hill was so great that even General Marmaduke's men could not hold their ground. Soon after this collapse of the rear guard, General Price's men were slowly but surely forced to retreat from the vicinity of Kansas City and the battle rapidly drew to a close.

Price and his officers rode along the retreating lines urging the men to make one more stand, which they did at almost exactly one o'clock. This second stand of Price's army was on an east and west line from the present Forest Hill cemetery to the Wornall road. Even in the heat of battle the officers and men of the Federal army were fascinated by the martial beauty of the vast extent of firing lines that were now entirely in the open. But this last and desperate stand of Price's men could avail nothing against the now combined armies of Curtis and Pleasanton, and as the Confederate Brigadier-General M. Jeff Thompson, later wrote, "then for the first time in this campaign Shelby's brigade turned its back toward the foe."

The Battle of Westport may be called the "Gettysburg of the West." Both were the results of a campaign of invasion planned by the Confederate War Department for the purpose of severing the Union territory at the point of attack. Both campaigns were intended to embarrass the Federal defense by necessitating the summoning of distant forces. Both threatened the principal cities in the invaded territory—Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia in the East; Kansas City, St. Louis and Jefferson City in the West. Both engagements consisted of three days' fighting and the Confederate defeat with which each closed ended further attempts to carry the war northward in their respective portions of the Union. Each defeat established one of the two high-tide marks of the Confederacy, the one in the East, the other in the West. And each conflict composed, in numbers and importance attained, the largest and most decisive land battle of the Civil War in its portion of the two natural divisions of the United States, the territories lying east and west of the Mississippi river.

Organized effort is being made to have Congress set aside this field as a National Military park. Mr. Huston Crittenden of Kansas City, as curator of the Missouri Valley Historical Society, has succeeded in having the national government make a preliminary survey in pursuance of a law passed and approved this year. The widespread military representation of states in this combat and the significance of the battle in the history of the Valley and the West, merit favorable action.

Attended M. F. A. Meeting at Columbia

John A. Gex of Graham and Thomas A. Tallon, east of Maryville, returned Saturday from Columbia, Mo., where they attended a meeting of the board of directors of the M. F. A., held last Thursday and Friday. Mr. Gex is a member of the board of directors.

Several prominent men addressed the meeting. Among them were Roy C. Potts, head of the dairy and poultry division of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Washington, D. C.; Daniel C. Rogers of the State Marketing Bureau at Jefferson City; and John M. Shawhan of the Shawhan Egg Agency of Chicago.

Mr. Potts said in part as follows:

"No one factor has more influence on quality improvement than the marketing of the product on a quality or graded basis. The Missouri Farmers Association has a wonderful opportunity to render good service to its members through better methods of handling poultry eggs and cream. These methods consist of improving the quality and selling in large volumes to big dealers who want quality products in large volumes for their trade."

Winter Weather Roars Down From Northwest

Brings Freezing Temperatures in Great Lakes Region and Leaves Trail of Dead Behind

Chicago, Oct. 19—Winter came roaring out of the Northwest today bringing freezing temperatures to all the regions of the Great Lakes and a trail of human dead and seared crops behind. There was five inches of snow driven by a biting wind which swept across the prairies in northern Minnesota and Canada today. Three deaths in this district were attributed directly to the snowfall. Wheat in Canada suffered severely from the heavy snow, 150 million bushels of unharvested grain being left to the mercy of the winds.

Believe More Lost in Steamship Disaster

Official Report of Company Officials Declares Toll of Comanche Accident is Only One

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 19—While federal steamboat inspectors were inaugurating a probe today into the cause of the fire aboard the Clyde line passenger steamer Comanche near Mayport Saturday night, watchers continued to patrol the coast line in the vicinity of Mayport for victims of the disaster which the sea may give back.

The official report issued by William B. Clements, district agent of the Clyde lines here, declared that only one passenger is missing, William Loweler of Wintrop, Mass. Veteran fisherman who aided in the rescue, however, were loath to believe that seventy-three passengers and a crew of ninety four could have been saved as they abandoned the burning ship.

C. E. Wells Heads Library Association

Next Meeting of Organization May Be Held in Maryville, According to Miss Grace Langan.

C. Edwin Wells, librarian of the State Teachers College, was elected president of the Missouri Library Association at the regional meeting of the American Library Association, held last week at Sioux City, Ia.

It is likely also that the next meeting of the Missouri Library Association will be held in Maryville, according to Miss Grace Langan, librarian of the Maryville Free Public Library, who, together with Mr. Wells, attended the Sioux City meeting.

At the Iowa meeting there were more than 600 delegates, Miss Langan said, but it included six states. Probably seventy-five librarians would come to Maryville if it is selected as the meeting place.

Mr. Wells has long been a leader in the Missouri Library Association, but he was not a candidate for the presidency and was greatly surprised when the honor was tendered to him.

Returns from Chicago.

Harry C. Todd, manager of the Hanamo Telephone Co. returned Sunday morning from a several days trip to Chicago where he attended a meeting of telephone men. There were 1,000 men in attendance at the meeting. Among the speakers were Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age of Chicago, formerly editor of the Maryville Tribune.

Chilton Robinson went to Kansas City Saturday evening to attend the opening performance of "Rose Marie" last night at the Shubert Theater.

Poultry Shipments Large.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—A favorable reaction on butter followed the release by the U. S. Department of Agriculture of warehouse figures on storage holdings. Today, the New York Market on 92 score Extras is quoted at 52½ cents and Chicago market on 90 score Standards 47¾ cents. This is an advance of 2 cents on the New York price and ½ cent on the Chicago market as compared with the same day last week.

Storage holdings reported were as follows:

October 1, 1925, Poultry, 44,732,000 lbs.; butter, 114,167,000 lbs.; eggs, 8,606,000 cs.; October 1, 1924, poultry, 40,070,000 lbs.; butter, 153,494,000 lbs.; eggs, 7,409,000 cs.

Increase: Poultry, 4,662,000 lbs.; eggs, 1,197,000 cs.

Decrease,: Butter, 39,327,000 lbs.

While there is a noticeable decrease in the volume of butter in storage, the amount was higher by nearly 5,000,000 lbs. than the five-year average. The consumption of butter is good, foreign markets are higher than last year and the entire dairy industry reflects a very healthy condition at the present time.

Receipts of fresh eggs are noticeably heavy, especially in view of the stock in storage, and while it is easing off, particularly at Chicago, only the closely graded eggs will bring top quotations. Producers can only secure top prices by taking excellent care of the eggs as produced, gathering daily, keeping in a cool place, and marketing at least three time weekly, and the merchants buying eggs must likewise keep them moving into channels of consumption, as holding only deteriorates the quality and value.

There is a large volume of poultry moving, and prices at the large centers of consumption on live poultry are easier, due to increased receipts. Even marketing by producers is suggested because there are still large stocks to be handled and it taxes the capacities of the feeding stations to handle and properly prepare poultry for market.

The feeding of milk or soft feeds on the farm should be avoided, using natural grains, so the poultry will be in best condition for finishing at fattening points.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Action in wheat again ruled the grain market on the Board of Trade today. A sharp break in the bread grain carried others with it.

Wheat passed through another erratic session. There were a few attempted rallies, but after slight recoveries prices again dropped back. Lack of aggressive support was plainly in evidence. The main drawback, as active operators explained it, was disposition among influentials to await new incentives. Commission houses sold corn. They reduced on the strength of better weather and increased movement.

Oats traders preferred to follow the waiting policy and finished relatively unchanged.

Provisions weakened late. At the top of a substantial gain prices tumbled to a lower finish on packers selling.

Parnell Teams Keep on Their Winnig Way

Both Boy and Girl Basketball Players Win From Ravenwood—Boys' Game Close.

The Parnell High School basketball teams continued their winning streak in the Nodaway County Basket-ball League by winning two games from Ravenwood, at Ravenwood Friday. The girls' score was 15-2, and the boys' score was 11-7.

The Parnell boys were trailing 7-1 at the end of the half and it looked as if Ravenwood would win. Toward the end of the third quarter Parnell spurted and by consistent teamwork tied the score and took a four point lead, which they held for the remainder of the game. Butler referred the girls' game and Cox the boys' game.

B. A. Jones of Parnell Winning in St. Louis

Seth's Alibi and Captain Seth Both Bred at Jones' Farm Near Parnell

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat Sunday had the following about the races at Fairmount Park near St. Louis and the winnings of B. A. Jones of Parnell:

Captain Seth's impost of 126 pounds did not prove enough to impede him in the third race which he won as he pleased. As usual he had Charlie Gross in the saddle and after trailing Fast Time to the middle of the stretch he came on to finish two length in front with plenty in reserve. The odds on Seth, $3.40 for $2 were a surprise, as it was supposed that he would not pay half that much.

The imported gray mare Sequel, running in the colors of B. A. Jones, rushed away in the lead in the fourth race and was joined on the back stretch by Turnberry. They raced each other head and head until both were tired. Sequel was the first to pass it up and Turnberry lasted to finish third. After waiting patiently with Talequa until entering the stretch, Gianelloni sent him along and won easily by three lengths. Donna Santa raced third to the last furlong where she moved up and finished second. There was applause from the crowd where the odds of $20.50 were posted on Talequa.

The feature race of the afternoon, the St. Louis Handicap, produced a thrilling finish in which Seth's Alibi, Firetoma and Ocean Current were so closely bunched at the end that the result was in doubt until the numbers were hung up, the horses finishing as named. There was a heavy play on Resolution toward the end of the betting which forced his odds down from 7 to 1 to 3 to 1, according to the prospective odds bulletin, but he could not do his best in the sticky going.

The winner was bred at the Jones Stock Farm, Nodaway County, Missouri, and was the second product of that farm to win during the afternoon, Capt. Seth being the other. Those who stuck to the Seth family did very well for Seth's Alibi paid $11.60 to win and $5.20 for the place.

Says Women Will not Wear High Shoes

New York, Oct. 19.—(United Press)—Wall street and Fifth Avenue clashed today over how Midlady will trim her dainty ankle. Wall street reported over its financial wires that the high shoe will be worn again by the women of America. But managers of the smartest Fifth Avenue shops pooh-poohed the idea. "The women of America perhaps will never wear high shoes again," said the suave proprietor of a smart shop patronized by women of fashion and the stage. "American women would resist the bondage of the high boot."

"We have not had an order for a high shoe in four years and I don't expect one for another four years," was the opinion of another Fifth avenue booter.

Modern "Paul Revere" Tells of Recent Trip to Maysville by Members of High School Team

An anonymous poem addressed to the student body of the Maryville High School, in the care of Miss Leola Miller, was received this morning and read before an assembly of the students, which uncovered some interesting history of the trip of the Spoofhound team to Maysville, where they played Friday.

The poem is a modern "Paul Revere" type only the character of Paul Revere is enacted by Captain ("Red") Kissinger of the Spoofhound team who saved the day. The story goes that while enroute to Maysville, some of the football boys driving down in a car got stuck in the mud and "Red" borrowed a "grey mare" from a farmer to ride to a neighbor, perhaps, to call to Maysville for some aid. But "Red" went on into the city of Maysville and tied the horse up at a "hitching post" and called it square.

According to the report of witnesses, the farmer who lent the horse to him, called on Hugh Graham, assistant coach of the Maryville team, and said "I want my horse." "What horse?" was the height of the knowledge of the coach but a little investigation on his part lead "Red" to confession.

The kind farmer got the horse alright but he told "Red" "I didn't know that when I lent you this horse I would have to walk after it, but the horse is worth the walk."

The true story, by an anonymous author is hereto told. Mr. Ziegler says he knows the author but will not make it known because he "does not know the author."

"The New Revere."

Hark! Maryville High School and you shall hear,
Of a daylight ride and a new Revere.
On the 16th of October, in '25,
The Spoofhounds, at Maysville, did arrive;
Though muddy and weary, we very much fear.

II

"Red" said to his team, "If in Maysville we play,
We've got to have help, for the town's not in sight,
So I'll telephone in and get us a way,
Or we'll be in the mud the rest of the night."
But no telephone had this farmer of course—
So "Red" in despair now borrows a horse.
Ready to ride he spreads a tarpaulin,
And up the road he sure goes a sprawlin';
For it is high time he gets there and does some fast callin"

III

Then he said "Goodbye and with graceful air,
He rode away on the old gray mare.
A farmer by chance came passing that way,
And pulled the boys out for meager pay;
For though the farmer said 'twas free,
The boys insisted on paying a fee.
Out of the rut and up the hill—
The worst was over, they'd get there still.

IV

Meanwhile, the Captain up hill and down—
Wanders, and wonders how far to town,
Till the city of Maysville at last he nears;
Getting hearty greetings of laughs, and cheers—
A circus they say is coming to town,
They've sent in advance
Their very best clown.

V

Then he climbs right off his steed so tall,
And the boys arrive and the game they call.
Twas a Captain brave
You must admit,
But worn and weary
They aren't quite fit.
A gamer bunch you never will find.
Who never lose spirit—
Though fate is unkind.

VI

You know the rest,
What the papers said;
How the Spoofhounds fought with their Captain "Red."
How the Spoofhounds met them—
Man for man,
Encouraged so gallantly by the Maryville band.
Though they lost the score,
Though they lost the game—
They upheld the honor of Maryville's name.

Runaway Boy One of Submarine Victims

Lure Of Sea Life Proved Too Much For Sylvester McCarty So He Left Home And Mother.

Washington, Oct. 19.—(United Press)—Like thousands of other boys, Sylvester McCarty wanted to go to sea, but his mother would not let him. She wanted him to stay at home, but whenever he went out he saw the gaudy posters of the navy, and whenever he stayed in his room he saw himself treading deck and roaming over strange seas.

So one night he told his mother he was going to a theater. He went out of the door and never came back. That was the last Mrs. Catherine McCarty of New York City ever heard of her son until the navy department notified her that Sylvester was among the dead aboard the S-51.

It was a long while before Mrs. McCarty could be reached, for Sylvester, to hide himself, had taken the name of John F. McCarty and given an aunt as the nearest of kin. The story of a runaway boy was not known until Mrs. McCarty applied for pension. In a pathetic letter to the pension bureau she told of Sylvester's disappearance and of her vain efforts to trace him. It was not until two weeks after the disaster that she was notified, she said.

Increase in Prices of Food in Last Year

Hike Is Over 8 Per Cent In Spite Of General Decrease During September, Department Of Labor Announces.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Despite the fact that there was a decrease of .8 of 1 per cent in the retail cost of food in September as compared with August, there was an increase of over 8 per cent during the year ending September 15, and an increase of .55 per cent since 1913, the department of labor announced today. Of twelve cities reporting increases, St. Louis and Kansas City reported an increase of less than .5 of 1 per cent.
